

*Special Report***

INTUITION

Your Secret "Radar" Guidance System
for Success

Discover how using 7 simple practical steps can create prosperity, harmony and joy in your business and personal life

by John Harricharan

© 2002 by John Harricharan

Special Report

- Intuition -

Your Secret "Radar" Guidance System for Success

Discover how using 7 simple, practical steps can create prosperity, harmony and joy in your business and personal life

by
John Harricharan

© 2002 by John Harricharan

Copyright © 2002 by John Harricharan All rights reserved

No part of this report may be reproduced, stored in a retrieval system, or transmitted in any form or by any means, electronic, mechanical, photocopying, recording, scanning, or otherwise, except as permitted under Section 107 or 108 of the 1976 United States Copyright Act, without either the prior written permission of the author, or authorization through payment of the appropriate fee. Requests to the author for permission should be addressed to the Permissions Department, New World Publishing, 5313 Alyssum Way, Atlanta, GA 30102 USA
(permissions@insight2000.com)

=====

“Listen to your intuition. It will tell you everything you need to know.”

— Anthony J. D'Angelo, The College Blue Book

=====

Introduction

Have you ever known someone who frequently seemed to have the inside edge? Wherever they go, whatever they do, things just seem to work out in their favor? The timing of their sales programs or investments was always more accurate. They seemed prepared—actually anticipating—personal relationship situations. Even in the most complex predicaments, they appeared to have access to some secret, insider's information.

Are these individuals more gifted than the rest of us? Maybe it's just dumb luck, or maybe they were born lucky? Yes, we all know of or have met such personalities.

Why do they almost always seem to make the right choices? The major reason is that they have learned how to listen to their intuition. They've let their instinct or gut-feelings guide them and have put this impressive tool to work for their own benefit.

You, too, can train yourself, using simple methods to develop and use your own inner gifts. You can see with your inner eye and hear with your inner ear. And when you follow the guidance of your higher being, you'll find that your life becomes a joyous adventure.

This very special report was written to help you use one of the most powerful faculties available to human beings—your intuition or sixth sense.

Much has been written about intuition. There are countless books, articles and courses about developing and using this tool. Yet, it seems to me that most of them use complicated methods to teach what is actually a very simple concept.

Rather than writing a book, which would help you to understand the enormous power within, I have condensed the information into seven, easy steps that anyone can do.

As with anything else, practice will improve your abilities to use your intuition. Therefore, I recommend that you read through this special report, not once, but a number of times; then follow the seven, uncomplicated steps. It doesn't take much time. In a short while you'll find that you become more perceptive, that your insight becomes sharper and that your ability to make smart choices is enhanced.

I have always felt that decisions are not to be made, but are to be discovered. Then you let the decision make YOU. Using your intuition will help you discover the best decision and make the best choices.

You may question whether it is your intuition that's bringing you the information you receive or whether it's wishful thinking or fear-based thinking. As you practice using the seven steps, you'll find that there's a deep knowing that develops within you and that the answer—whether it seems reasonable or not—feels right.

Is this information new? No, there probably isn't anything under the sun that's really new. It's the program and the way the seven steps are put together that's actually different. Parts of this system for developing intuition could be found in many books, but this is the first time that all the parts are brought together in a way that anyone, regardless of age, culture, creed or religion could use with tremendous benefit.

Remember, you can use your intuition to help find answers to any or all of your problems. During our stay on Earth we only encounter three problems: money, health and relationships. Any problem you have will fall under one or a combination of these three. So feel free to use your intuitive abilities in any area of your life.

Are you starting a new business or do you want to improve your Internet marketing? Your intuitive abilities will help you make the best choices. Are you looking for a new relationship or simply want to improve the one you have? Your intuition will help you in achieving your goal. Are you facing a financial or health related problem? Listen to your inner self. The "still, small voice" will guide you to take the action necessary for healing and well-being.

So join me on a journey to learn the advantages and benefits that intuition can provide for you today. This report is a quick read, but the benefits go far beyond what you'd normally expect from the simple steps involved.

May your journey be one of discovery of all good things.

John Harricharan

=====
"Cease trying to work everything out with your minds. It will get you nowhere. Live by intuition and inspiration and let your whole life be Revelation."
— Eileen Cady
=====

Using Your Intuition in Business and in Life

It was late in the afternoon. I had just completed my day's work and was getting ready to relax and have dinner. But a persistent feeling came over me to call my friend, Robert "Butch" James.

Butch has an eye for good products. He not only knows marketing, but is also considered one of the top experts in the field of direct marketing. His honesty, integrity and caring set him apart from most other people I know.

Butch and I normally stay in touch by phone. He lives in the northeast portion of the United States while I have my home in the southeast. There was no apparent reason why I should have an urge to call him since we had just spoken a few days ago. As far as I knew, there was no emergency, nothing that I had to talk to him about.

I followed the feeling...

But the feeling persisted. I have learned over the years to be aware of such feelings and to act upon them. Yet, this time I decided that I'd call him the following day to see if all was well. However, the feeling did not disappear. If anything, it became more persistent.

So I picked up the phone and dialed his number. He wasn't there. I did the next best thing; I called his mother to see if Butch was having dinner with her. The first ring was not over when his mother picked up the phone. After a brief greeting, she told me that Butch was not there, but that he was staying late at the office to complete a few projects.

I thanked her and hung up the phone. The phone must not have been in the cradle for more than two seconds when it rang. I picked it up and a voice said, "Hi John, I just wanted to call and see how you're doing." It was Butch. I asked him if everything was fine and he assured me that all was well.

A fantastic business idea...

He said that although we had spoken recently, he just felt like calling me again. We talked for a while and the conversation swung into the business arena. I told him how I've been thinking that we need to increase sales and he said, "I've got a thought about that. Why don't you...?" And he offered me a fantastic idea. Although I knew Butch was brilliant and that he was one of the best in his field, I couldn't believe that in a few minutes, he could come up with a method to double the sales of one of my products.

The simplicity of the method was amazing. I could implement it very quickly and sales would start moving up immediately. I thanked Butch, spoke for a short while longer then said goodbye. Out of that conversation came a big plus for my business.

What I want to call to your attention about this incident are the following points:

- I had an urge to call a friend.
- There was no special reason to call him.
- I wanted to put off calling.
- When I called, I couldn't reach him.
- The moment I hung up the phone, he called.
- The result of the call was a large increase in sales for my business.

This is not an isolated incident. The literature is filled with examples of this type. Who of us have not had a situation where we knew who was calling before we picked up the phone? Or we thought of someone and that very day there's a letter in our mailbox from that person?

Unseen influences are all around...

What is it that makes for such situations? Is it possible that there are unseen influences all around us that work for us whether or not we want to acknowledge their existence? Are there other senses beyond the five we know?

I firmly believe that we all have a sixth sense, a certain something within us that is willing, ready and able to help us obtain information, make choices and arrive at decisions without going through the steps of logical thinking.

Call it what you will—intuition, sixth sense, ESP, gut feelings, a hunch or whatever—there is overwhelming evidence to show that we can employ this little-used faculty to make us happier and more prosperous. Countless studies have been done on these topics over many decades by reputable scientists at some of our most prestigious universities. These studies point to an ability, that—if properly nurtured and developed—would save us from many painful experiences and bring us overwhelming success.

You can make wise decisions...

Using intuition to make decisions wisely is not something that only a few gifted people can do. It doesn't have anything to do with who you are, where you were born or your culture, creed or religious affiliation.

There are practical benefits that the use of your intuition could bring. Among them are:

- 1) You could obtain information about a subject without going through the rational and reasoning process.
- 2) You could be encouraged to make a choice (which you might not have considered) that turns out to be the most brilliant thing you ever could have done.

- 3) You could be warned of impending disaster and by taking action, avoid the very disaster that was coming your way.
- 4) Your intuition could bring you answers that you're blocking from your conscious mind due to a high emotional state.

An open mind and a willingness...

All it takes to develop this sixth sense is an open mind and a willingness to try the methods contained in this special report. I will give you seven, simple steps that you can use to develop and profit from your intuitive abilities.

Don't let the simplicity of these steps deceive you. Some of the most profound truths are simple. A great mathematician once said, "God is simple. All else is complex."

Isn't it interesting that the simplest of atoms, the hydrogen atom, is the most abundant element in the universe? And isn't even more interesting that this simplest of atoms is a vital component of water—without which there would be no life as we know it on Earth? So don't be fooled by the simplicity of the steps that I'll be giving you later in this report.

No special talents required...

And no, you don't have to be a specially gifted person to be able to use your intuition. You don't have to have studied philosophy, religion or science to develop your intuitive abilities. That would be as ridiculous as saying you have to study those subjects to be able to breathe or smell or taste.

Just give yourself permission...

Just give yourself permission to use your intuition. You'll be amazed how well it works for you when you permit yourself to "work" it.

Intuitive insights come through the use of your sixth sense, and everyone has that. In many people this ability is not very developed; others choose to ignore it. But almost everyone—and I mean everyone—can develop and use this tool for fun, profit, success, wealth and happiness.

And yes, it's perfectly fine to use it to find a great relationship or improve a current one or even to terminate or change relationships. And, of course, you can use it to improve and maintain your health. And definitely, this sixth sense can be used to make your business or career successful beyond your wildest dreams.

Electricity doesn't care...

Intuition is like electricity in some ways. Electricity doesn't care whether it's used to light up a room or cook a meal or to run the refrigerator. It's the nature of electricity to do all these things and more if we work within the laws of electricity. So the proper use of your intuition will help you in decisions about your health, relationships and money. After all, there are only three problems we face—money, health and relationship. Choose any problem you have and it will fall under one or more of these three categories.

For those of you who are marketing mavens or hard-nosed business people, you will find many examples of how some of the most successful business people in the world used intuition or hunches to make great profits.

A major business coup...

Consider the case of Conrad Hilton, the founder of the Hilton chain of hotels. During the Second World War, he wanted to buy the Stevens Hotel in Chicago. But the Air Force had taken over the hotel. Conrad Hilton then decided that he would buy the Stevens Corporation and so would have the hotel when the government released it from wartime use. The trustees of the corporation called for sealed bids and Hilton quickly made his bid.

In his book, "Be My Guest", Hilton himself recalls what happened. "My first bid, hastily made, was $165,000," he said. "Then somehow that didn't feel right to me. Another figure kept coming, $180,000. It seemed fair, it felt right. I changed my bid to the larger figure on that hunch. When they were opened, the closest bid to mine was $179,800. I got the Stevens Corporation by a narrow margin of $200. Eventually the assets returned me $2 million."

"... a valid and logical link between intuition and decision making exists," said Business Digest in November of 1969. The article continued with "That alone may be one of the most important management breakthroughs in years." There is no doubt whatsoever that using intuition in making business decisions, or for that matter, any decision, not only enhances the quality of the decision, but makes it possible to succeed more often as well.

How I found my first real job

It was a hot and sticky day in the heart of New York City. I had been beating the pavements all day, armed with my resume. I visited every employment agency I could find and now I was tired—not only tired, but also hot, hungry and frustrated. Armed with my trappings of academia, I couldn't understand why it was so difficult to find a job. Discouragement was beginning to set in.

Humbled and tired, I thought I'd rest a while and then visit one or two more agencies. The voices in my head were giving me conflicting information. One voice said, "You've been looking all day and haven't found anything. Perhaps you should go home, rest and relax and start again tomorrow."

Another voice, more gentle than the first said, "Don't go home yet. Rest a while and then decide whether you should go home or try one or two more employment agencies. Just rest for five or ten minutes. What harm is there in that?"

Messages from nowhere...

Across the street, under a tree, was a bench, probably placed there by some kind soul for weary travelers. I walked over, sat down and breathed a sigh of relief. How great it felt, just sitting there for a while. As I sat there thinking of almost nothing, I noticed a small, white slip of paper on the ground next to the bench. On closer examination, I saw that it was a business card, perhaps inadvertently dropped by someone in a hurry.

I leaned over, picked it up and read the name and address of an employment agency that I had not yet visited. It was a few blocks away from where I was sitting, so I thought I'd go over there, turn in my resume and then go home. I got up from the bench and walked over to the address that was printed on the card. In short, that's how I landed my first job with a Fortune 500 company.

Years later, looking back at the experiences of that hot summer day, I would always wonder what paths my career would have taken had I not picked up that business card.

Here are some of the simple, yet important observations about this incident:

- There were two voices in my head, one telling me to go home and the other whispering that I should rest for a few moments.
- I chose to rest for a few moments before doing anything else.
- By choosing the suggestion of the second voice, I ended up on a bench under a tree and saw a business card lying on the ground.
- Although I was tired, I felt an urge to pick up the business card.

- By following that urge, I was given the name and address of an employment agency that found me my first big job.

A natural way for guidance...

Intuition is a simple, natural way in which we receive guidance to help us in our health, career or relationship. This guidance is of extremely practical value. You can train yourself to use the power of intuition for success in any or all areas of your life. You can use this wonderful ability, not only to help you achieve your dreams, but to help those who are near and dear to you.

By the time you're finished reading this report, you will have all the information you need to develop and use your intuition. As you keep practicing, using your intuition will become a habit—almost second nature. You'll be amazed to see how much more productive, happy and peaceful you become.

And don't think that intuition is to be used for small things. It is to be used for all things. Is it easier for the universe to provide you with $1,000 instead of $10,000? Is it simpler for you to marry someone who's not really what you're looking for instead of the one who is the love of your life? No, it is just as simple to get the great things, as it is to get the mediocre stuff. All you need to know is a few simple techniques and I'll tell you about them later. But first, another little story to show you that anyone could use this wonderful tool called intuition.

It was a relatively quiet evening as a little-known author was walking along the beach. Things were bad, really bad. The money had run out and the children were hungry. He probably was wondering how he'd make it through another day.

A magical, mystical seagull...

He continued walking and then, all of a sudden, he heard a voice in the dark. The only thing the voice said was, "Jonathan Livingston Seagull." Richard Bach turned around to see where the voice came from, but he saw no one. The voice repeated the words, "Jonathan Livingston Seagull." Startled and puzzled, Richard hastened back to his room and started writing.

He wrote the bestselling story about a seagull that loved to fly, more than anything else. It was the book, Jonathan Livingston Seagull that put Richard Bach on the cover of Time magazine. I first met Richard more than two decades ago and we've kept in touch, on and off, over the years. Many of our conversations have been stranger than some of the things we've both written about in our books. Yet, I feel that we are all divinely guided if we choose to listen to and follow the guidance.

The rich and famous do it...

Some of the most well known people of all times have used their intuitive abilities to help them in their everyday lives. There are many stories told about people such as Abraham Lincoln, Albert Einstein, Winston Churchill and leaders—not only of governments, but also—of industry.

Anyone can do it...

Are there some people who are more capable of using their intuitive gifts than others? Of course there are. There are natural born psychics and intuitives just like there are natural born musicians, actors or teachers. However, anyone can develop this fantastic sixth sense and use it to prosper and attain success.

Seven Steps to freedom, joy and all good things...

Now, before we get into the seven-step process on developing and using your intuition, I want to repeat that you must not let the simplicity of each step fool you. These seven steps are not new and you may have heard or read about them before, but read them again. And please practice them.

Practice is extremely important. By following each step, you'll find that changes start occurring in your life—small and sometimes subtle changes at first, then the big ones. It's almost like learning to ride a bicycle. No one could actually teach you how to become an expert rider. You could read every book ever written about bicycle riding, but until you get on the bike and start, you wouldn't really know what bicycling is really like.

Step Number 1

The first step in developing and using your intuitive powers is to find a quiet place. Yes, you read that correctly—find a quiet place where you can be with yourself for a short while without any outside interferences.

I am not saying that you have to build an addition to your house or get a larger apartment or room. All you need is to find a place where you are comfortable and where you won't have to answer the phone or focus on activities that need your total attention.

I use my back porch for this purpose. At other times, I may use a room in my house where no one is present. Sometimes a quiet place for me is a walk around the neighborhood. It really doesn't have to be a special place—just a place where you could enjoy five or ten minutes of quiet.

Now I want to tell you that there are advanced practitioners who have no need to find any special place to be quiet. Because of practice, they are able to create a place of quiet in their minds and are able to go there anytime they so desire. But most people are not able to do so at the start. Better to find a quiet place.

Step Number 2

This step is as simple as step #1. Here it is: As soon as you're comfortable in your quiet place, breathe in and out slowly and deeply for about thirty seconds to about one minute.

There is no magic involved in this exercise. There are no rituals here. You do not have to breathe in for the count of eight or ten or whatever. If you feel comfortable in doing so, however, go right ahead. I just want you to know that it is not necessary. Just pick what is comfortable for you.

I usually breathe in for the count of seven, hold my breath for the count of three and breathe out for the count of seven. If you were to ask me why seven, three and seven, I would have to tell you that there is no special reason except I like those numbers. They are my favorite numbers. That's why I use them.

Let me explain why this breathing exercise is important. It's very simple. When you take slow, deep breaths, you become calmer and more relaxed. The aim is to become relaxed and calm in this quiet place. It is in the quietness and stillness that you'll find the answers you're looking for. Now, on to the next step.

Step Number 3

Wherever we are, whatever we are doing, there are always voices in our heads. These voices are our own and they carry on a continuous conversation. If we pay attention, we could hear these voices arguing with themselves.

We all carry on endless conversations with ourselves. This, of itself, is really not a problem. What happens, however, is this self-talk generally boils down to meaningless babble. If we've been facing some very difficult problems, we may become afraid and our self-talk would then focus on the problem in such a way that we could become paralyzed by fear.

It is our habit, when we are frightened by the enormity of a problem, to examine the problem from all angles trying to come up with a solution. Sometimes we try so hard to solve the problem that we make the problem even worse by conjuring up some of the direst outcomes that could occur. That's like watering your garden and standing on the hose. We want to water our garden, but by standing on the hose we cut off the very flow of water that we desire.

So step #3 is to quiet the voices in our head—tone down the endless conversations for a short while. The aim of becoming quiet is to help us break our focus from the things that are bothering us. Quietness helps us to tune in to the very rhythms of the universe. By doing this, we are able to hear a bit more clearly with our inner ear and see a bit more clearly with our inner sight (or insight).

Steps #1, #2 and #3 are designed to get you to a place of quiet, not only physically, but mentally as well. It's only when we are attuned to the rhythms of nature that we can hear the universe gently calling us and reminding us that we are safe and that all the answers to our most vexing situations exist right now.

So use whatever methods you can think of to lower the volume of the voices and endless conversations in your mind. The universe is like a broadcasting beacon. There are billions and billions of frequencies that are being broadcasted simultaneously and we have to be tuned in to our own private frequency to receive the messages that have to do with our personal lives and our personal world. When we quiet our minds, we hear the “still, small voice” and this “still, small voice” has the answers to all the questions we have or could ever have.

Step Number 4

This step is a rather pleasant, little exercise. Everyone should be able to do step #4 without a problem. Here it is: Let your mind wander a bit to a pleasant experience you once had. Use your imagination to do this.

Explore the pathways of memories until you come upon a pleasant experience of the past. Then just hold the memory and relive the experience in your mind. How did you feel when you were going through the experience? There was probably a good degree of excitement blended with joy, hope and all good things. Remember, it’s supposed to be a pleasant experience. Don’t choose an unpleasant or difficult memory to revisit.

Everyone—and I mean EVERYONE—has had at least a number of extremely pleasant experiences. Yes, I know, we’ve also had lots of difficult ones, too. But for this step, you need to focus on and re-experience one of your more pleasant adventures.

It could be the first time you fell in love. Or perhaps, you may have been awarded first prize for something you did. It could be a trip that turned out to be one of the best you ever took. It may be the time you and some friends enjoyed a great weekend. Whatever it was, just bring it to your mind again. Just remember, you have the power of choice, so you can remember any experience you choose to remember. Just pick one that was very enjoyable.

Now, why do we want to remember and use our imagination to re-experience a memory? Because of a very subtle and important, psychological reason. You see, the subconscious mind cannot tell the difference between something that is happening right now and something that's vividly imagined.

The subconscious doesn't deal with past and future; it only deals with the present. And it's impressed by deep feelings and repetition. So when you remember and imagine yourself in a pleasant experience of the past, the subconscious mind—that part of us that helps us to get what we want—starts working to bring situations to you that would duplicate the joy of the past experience. This might seem a bit mystical to some of you, but don't let that be a barrier to the process. Just go on to the next part, which is to let go of the memory and repeat the breathing exercise given to you in step #2.

That's right, let go of the pleasant remembering and take some deep breaths, hold, and breathe out. (See Step #2). Now let's proceed to Step#5.

Step Number 5

Step #5 is a bit similar to step #4, but with a few major differences. Come back to your present situations and in your mind take a quick glance at a problem you're facing. It doesn't matter what the problem is. The idea is to look at it for a few seconds—about 20 to 30 seconds but no more.

The previous steps have brought you to a somewhat beautifully relaxed state. If you think too long, too much and too hard about a current problem, you will only serve to make yourself a bit tense and we want to avoid that. That's why 20 or 30 or even 45 seconds would be fine. Don't get immersed in the details of the problem and don't over-analyze or over-evaluate the situation.

The idea in this step is to get you to look briefly at the problem and then imagine that a number of days, weeks or months have gone by and the problem no longer exists. The imagination is called the "scissors of the mind." It is an extremely powerful faculty and, if used correctly, could move mountains of worry.

So look at the current problem you want to solve and do the following in your mind:

- 1) Tell yourself that although the problem seems really big at this time, you know that it has a solution.
- 2) Explain to yourself that you know that the solution is probably simpler than you think or CAN think right now.
- 3) Say that you are leaving the matter of a solution and resolution to your higher faculties and that you know the perfect solution is even now being revealed to you.
- 4) Now think ahead—a week, a month or even a year or more—and see (or imagine) that the problem no longer exists.

Let's say the problem you're currently facing is one concerning your financial situation. You're wondering where you'll get the money to pay the overdue mortgage or rent. Just think of the amount you need, but go beyond that. Think a little differently. Think that six months have gone by and the mortgage or rent you were worried about in the past has been taken care of in ways that you couldn't have guessed.

At first, you probably will have difficulty doing this. But, with a little bit of practice, I haven't found anyone yet who hasn't been able to do it. You can do it, too, with practice. Just glance at the problem you want solved. Look at it, not as a giant wall blocking your path, but as something that you'd look back on in a few months and wonder why you worried so much.

Thinking a bit differently is not difficult at all. Many of us exercise our physical muscles, but never give a hoot about exercising our "mind muscles". Just practice and you'll be amazed how easily it comes.

Here's a little example of how to think slightly different from your usual routine. As you know, the Roman Numeral IX is the number 9. Okay, how do you change the number IX to 6? It may not be obvious immediately, but just by adding the letter S in front of IX we have changed IX to SIX. The first time I came upon this problem I wasn't able to get it right away. Does that mean I'm stupid? I hope not. I was too caught up with normal thinking to quiet myself enough to think about the problem just a bit differently.

The same thing goes for problems about relationships. Let's say you're longing for your true love. And let's say you've had countless relationships that all ended in disaster. And furthermore, after all those unpleasant relationships, let's say you're beginning to think that you'll never find someone who really loves and understands you. Don't be dismayed. Just follow the instructions given earlier.

Think slightly differently; approach your dilemma from a different perspective. Think that time has moved on and it's three to six months from now. You look back to today and wonder why you were so concerned about relationships. Sometime—a few months from now—the most wonderful relationship came into your life and you're filled with joy, peace and endorphins are flowing all over the place.

And for those of you, who say that you have no money problems and no relationship challenges, let's say you're dealing with an issue about health. It doesn't even have to be a health situation you are personally experiencing. It could be that of a parent, a child, a close friend or relative. Here's what you do: go ahead in time a few months and imagine yourself doing the things that you'd be doing if the health problem had disappeared.

If it's someone else's health that you're concerned about, do the same thing. Think forward a few months and, in your mind's eye, see that person doing the things he or she would be doing if the health problem didn't exist any longer.

Step Number 6

The sixth step is very simple, but not always easy. Again, like anything else, a little practice will make it as easy as it's simple. Let go of everything you've done, take some deep breaths and say to yourself that you are not attached to the outcomes. Accept that you know the solution, the best solution is there for you, and that you'll see it soon.

Step Number 7

At this point, you can leave your quiet place and go back to your normal activities. The last and final step is to be aware of thoughts that seem to come from nowhere into your mind. Throughout your normal working day, just be gently aware of your thoughts, of hunches and feelings, of things you hear or see.

=====

Don't worry about where the answers will come from. Come, they surely will. The "where and how" isn't really anything you have to give much thought to. Don't even try to figure what avenues will be used to bring you the answer. Those will be shown to you.

I believe that each and every one of us has an invisible "Ways and Means" committee. The job of this committee is to scan your entire reality and find the best way to bring you the solution to your problem. We must not interfere with the workings of this committee or we'll delay the speed at which the solution will appear. Our job is to make choices and then let the "Ways and Means” committee bring us the solutions that will fulfill the deepest desire of our hearts.

At this point you’re probably wondering how long it would take to get the answers to your problem. Here’s the amazing thing—it could happen in a few days, a few weeks or even a few months. I know some people who’ve had the solution to their most serious problem within a day. I know others who’ve had results in a few hours. Time isn’t important here. To quote one of my commonly used affirmations, “God’s never late.”

So don’t look over your shoulder constantly to see if the answer to your problem is rushing toward you. You do your part as outlined in the seven steps in this special report. The “Ways and Means” committee will take care of the rest.

Remember to have an expectant attitude, but not one that is impatient or anxious. If you find yourself becoming anxious and worried, repeat the seven steps I’ve given you in this discussion.

=====

Now, for one of the most exciting parts of this whole report. But before we go into that, it bears repeating that you now have to be aware of your thoughts, especially the ones that seem to have nothing to do with the problem as you originally thought about it. Watch your feelings and look at your hunches and then follow the guidance you receive.

How would the answer come to you? From one or more of a multitude of sources.

The answer could come as a stray thought...

The answer could come as a seeming stray thought. This could happen at a moment when you least expect it. That's why you must be aware of your thoughts and feelings.

There is no telling when that thought could come into your mind. Perhaps it would come when you're taking a shower or a bath. It could happen while you're walking or exercising, driving a car, or humming a tune.

Or it could come from observing an event. Albert Einstein's observation of someone falling off a roof triggered a train of thoughts that advanced the theory of relativity.

Stories told in the night...

A dream could solve your problem. Consider, for example, Friedrich August Kekule. He had done a great amount of research on the structure and configuration of molecules, but as hard as he tried, he could not figure out the structure of the benzene molecule.

One day, as he was dozing off, he had a dream of snakes biting their tails. He woke up with the thought that the benzene molecule was shaped like a ring. Experiments and calculations proved him to be absolutely correct. That one discovery opened up an entire new branch of chemistry.

On a cold winter's night in 1869 in Russia, Dmitri Mendeleev went to bed. He had been trying for years to determine how to group the atomic weights of the chemical elements into an orderly way that would shed light on the nature of the atoms.

Frustrated, he fell asleep. And as he slept, he dreamed of a chart where the elements were listed in a way where their properties repeated in a regular fashion. Out of that dream came the famous Periodic Table of the Elements, known in some circles as the Mendeleev Periodic Table.

History is full of examples of those who used their intuitive insights to solve major problems. In a dream, Elias Howe, discovered the final piece of the puzzle that revolutionized sewing and inspired the invention of the sewing machine. Dr. Frederick Banting discovered the basis of insulin while he was asleep and dreaming.

A powerful tool...

Intuition is a tool, a powerful tool, indeed. If nurtured, developed and trusted, it would find countless ways to bring you useful information about your life and success. If ignored and scoffed at, its very life-changing messages would have no power to help us. For intuition to be of use to us, we must have an open mind and a willingness to follow the "still small voice." Intuition is nothing more than data—data we previously were unaware of. But like all information, it is practically useless unless we are aware of it and put it to use.

Messages in movies...

You may even get information as you watch a movie. A certain intersection of time, space and thought may trigger your subconscious to bring the answer you were looking for.

I have a habit of looking at car license plates. I can hold a question in my mind and then look at the license plate on a car that's just passing me. The numbers and letters on the license plate would be an indication of a message meant for me.

This is a little game I often play. You'd be surprised to see how many times it has worked with stunning accuracy. (More about this is mentioned in my book, When You Can Walk on Water, Take the Boat. For a free, pdf download, go to <http://www.waterbook.com>).

A recap of the seven steps...

- 1) Find a quiet place.
- 2) Breathe deeply a few times.
- 3) Quiet the voices in your head.
- 4) Remember a pleasant experience.
- 5) Imagine that time has passed and it's now weeks or months in the future and the problem no longer exists.
- 6) Let go of the problem.

- 7) Go about your daily tasks with a feeling of expectancy and be aware of the hunches and ideas that you receive.

Messages from the universe...

Information will come to you if you don't make it too hard for yourself. The universe is whispering to you all the time. The problem is that we are often too busy or preoccupied to listen for the messages.

Now, a very important part about trust and belief. The system works best if we trust it. I've discovered that intuition never leads us wrong. It is the misinterpretation of the data that generates incorrect conclusions.

One final thought...

When your intuition brings you answers, be prepared to take action—follow that dream, make that call, write that book. Practice the seven steps given in this special report. They are not difficult to follow. Anyone can do them. A little practice will go a long way in helping you to come up with answers to your most difficult problems.

Remember, our sixth sense is not the exclusive domain of gifted individuals. It does not only belong to swamis, yogis or saints. No particular culture, creed or nationality has a monopoly on intuition. Everyone can train to use his or her intuitive powers for a fulfilled and happy life.

We have come to the end of this report. But it's not really an end. It should be a whole, new beginning of a life full of promise, joy, peace and all good things for you. Now you can access a wealth of wisdom through using your intuition—all that's left is to act on it, do it.

=====

Quotes About Intuition

Trust your hunches. They're usually based on facts filed away just below the conscious level.

— Dr. Joyce Brothers

Heed the still, small voice that so seldom leads us wrong, and never into folly.

— Madame du Deffand

And thine ears shall hear a word behind thee, saying, This is the way, walk ye in it, when ye turn to the right hand, and when ye turn to the left.

— Bible / Isaiah - 30:21

The intuitive mind is a sacred gift; the rational mind is faithful servant.

We have created a society that honors the servant and has forgotten the gift.

— Albert Einstein

Indecision is an insult to progress. When it's time to make a decision about a person or a problem... trust your intuition... act!

— Bud Hadfield, founder Kwik Kopy

Forced to choose among irrelevant alternatives, on the basis of misleading facts, and without the benefit of solid analysis, even the best judgment can do little but grope intuitively in the dark.

— Charles L. Schultze, former Director Office of Management and Budget

No matter how deep a study you make, what you really have to rely on is your own intuition, and when it comes down to it, you really don't know what's going to happen until you do it.

— Konosuke Matsushita, founder Matsushita Electric Co.

If you're truly serious about preparing your child for the future, don't teach him to subtract — teach him to deduct.

— Fran Lebowitz, Social Studies

Intuition is a spiritual faculty and does not explain, but simply points the way.

— Florence Scovel Shinn

Follow your instincts. That's where true wisdom manifests itself.

— Oprah Winfrey

Because of their age-long training in human relations—for that is what feminine intuition really is—women have a special contribution to make to any group enterprise, and I feel it is up to them to contribute the kinds of awareness that relatively few men . . . have incorporated through their education.

— Margaret Mead

Trusting our intuition often saves us from disaster.

— Anne Wilson Schaef

We need to make the world safe for creativity and intuition, for it's creativity and intuition that will make the world safe for us.

— Edgar Mitchell

It is by intuition that we discover and by logic that we prove.

— Henri Poincaré

Intuition is reason in a hurry.

— Holbrook Jackson

Problems cannot be solved at the same level of awareness that created them.

—Albert Einstein

About John Harricharan ...

Outstanding businessman, John Harricharan, is a remarkable blend of East and West. Well-educated and professional in demeanor, he is a global personality, who, not only is an excellent entrepreneur, but a compelling, bestselling author and a dynamic, charismatic speaker as well.

John is the award-winning author of the bestselling book, When You Can Walk on Water, Take the Boat. His other books include, Morning Has Been All Night Coming and Journey in the Fields of Forever. He is also the creator of the ground-breaking PowerPause System, the amazing formula that uses a 3 Minute, 3 Step method for personal success and real happiness.

Harricharan graduated summa cum laude in chemistry and mathematics and holds an MBA from Rutgers University. He started his career with Fortune 500 corporations and worked his way into upper level executive positions. He continued by blending his knowledge of the corporate world with his entrepreneurial talents, to build extremely successful businesses.

But then the greatest disaster of his life came upon him. His wife, the princess of his life, was diagnosed with terminal cancer. She was only in her thirties and their children were still young. His wife's death forced him to re-evaluate what was important in life. Accumulating things and money seemed to be such a small part in the equation of happiness.

His transformational messages stem from his challenging personal growth experiences. As Harricharan says, "I know what it feels like to have my car repossessed, to watch my wife die of cancer, to lose all earthly possessions and start again from ground zero. I also know what it feels like to write an award-winning book, to be written about in others' books and to be featured in the same book with His Royal Highness, Prince Philip of Great Britain, the Dalai Lama and Sir Paul McCartney. The contrasts bring compassion and sensitivity to one's life."

John knows failure as well as success. The events that led to both are incorporated in his lectures and are chronicled in his books, which, rather than being stories of loss and sadness are, instead, inspiring tales of courage, strength and the dignity of the human spirit. He has shared the lecture platform with such well-known speakers as Deepak Chopra, Elisabeth Kubler-Ross, Og Mandino, Gerald Jampolsky, Foster Hibbard, Eric Butterworth, C. Everett Koop and others.

He currently manages his Internet businesses, travels extensively and writes, lectures and consults. Foster Hibbard, friend and associate of the late Dr. Napoleon Hill (of Think and Grow Rich) referred to John as "one of the most extraordinary human beings I've ever met."

To sum up, in the words of Dr. Elisabeth Kubler-Ross, renowned psychiatrist and author, "John Harricharan brilliantly inspires you, motivates you and teaches you. He's fantastic ... absolutely fantastic. Listen to what he says."

=====

John has been written about, featured, quoted or interviewed in numerous books, magazines, newspapers, radio and television, including:

Maximum Brain Power--Rodale
The Way Ahead--Element Press
Exploring the Power Within--Whitford Press
Angels Don't Die--HarperCollins
Undying Love--Berkley Books
The 100 Top Psychics in America--Pocketbooks
Atlanta Journal Constitution
The DesMoines Register
Elle magazine
Body, Mind and Spirit magazine
The Other Side--NBC
Point of View--CBS
Beyond Reason-- Nashville, TN
Texas, U.S.A--Dallas, TX
The Joan Rivers Show
Sky TV--UK

Resources

- 1) Visit John Harricharan's website at <http://insight2000.com/> and sign up for his free, inspirational newsletter. Read conversations and interviews with renowned personalities such as Richard Bach, author of Jonathan Livingston Seagull, Brad Steiger, Deepak Chopra, Elisabeth Kubler-Ross, Foster Hibbard, Muhammad Ali and others.
- 2) For information about the PowerPause system, the 3 minute, 3 step method for personal success and real happiness, go to: <http://powerpause.com/>
- 3) You can get a free, PDF download of John's award-winning bestseller, When You Can Walk on Water, Take the Boat at: <http://waterbook.com/>
- 4) John Harricharan's private, membership website is called EnterprisingSpirit.com -- a place where business and spirit meet. For more information on how to join this special, private membership site, just visit <http://EnterprisingSpirit.com/>
- 5) Photographs of John and some of his friends can be found at <http://mindmarketing.com/picturepages.html>
- 6) To purchase a hard copy version of When You Can Walk on Water, Take the Boat, go to <http://www.amazon.com/>

- 7) To purchase a hard copy version of Morning Has Been All Night Coming, go to <http://www.amazon.com/>
- 8) For information about John's audio and video cassettes <mailto:info@insight2000.com>
- 9) For information about John's consulting services, visit: <http://insight2000.com/consultations.html>

=====
© 2002 by John Harricharan
New World Publishing
5313 Alyssum Way, Atlanta GA 30102
770-591-7650 (john@insight2000.com)
=====